

With the rapidly increasing number of Covid cases, Edgewood activated its Business Continuity Plan to permit employees to work remotely from December 13, 2021 until January 10, 2022.

Edgewood's Investment Committee will continue to conduct its day-to-day responsibilities albeit remotely and the trading department remains fully functional with the same coverage level. Our technology infrastructure and contingency plans enable us to maintain our high standards of client service and all employees are available for meetings by telephone and video conferencing.

Edgewood's Chief Operating Officer, Fausto Rotundo, is the designated Business Continuity Officer and is monitoring the situation closely to ensure the necessary precautions are taken to protect employees and their families as well as ensuring business operations are not negatively affected. Please be assured that Edgewood will continue to regularly review the latest information, protocols and tools from the world's leading health experts and government authorities to ensure we have the most up-to-date and relevant information.

Please do not hesitate to contact us at (212) 652-9100 or egf@edgewood.com if you would like additional information regarding the steps we have taken to ensure the continuation of our business in the event there is a significant disruption. We will communicate with you any changes in this rapidly evolving environment by sending out emails as well as posting notifications to Edgewood's website located at www.edgewood.com. Lastly, please do not hesitate to reach out to one of Edgewood's partners on their direct lines as follows:

Alan Breed	(212) 652-9120	Scott Edwardson	(212) 313-6068
Larry Creel	(212) 652-9118	Jim Carrier	(212) 652-9123
Alex Farman-Farmaian	(212) 652-0367	Fausto Rotundo	(212) 652-0095
Peter Jennison	(212) 652-0370	Raymond Jaeger	(212) 652-9110
Kevin Seth	(212) 652-9111	Olivia Fleming	(212) 313-6057
Nick Stephens	(212) 652-9112		